I've been dickering around with the Raptr Beta:

It merges the various IM software (which I rarely use) accesses your Facebook/Twitter/whatever (again, I have Facebook but meh) and keeps track of what games you play (glad someone will) and how much (scared to find out).

It's neat, but I'm not sure I'm the sort that really will appreciate it.

I blame it on my son's achievement hunger on his PS and all that jazz. Gotta catch 'em all.

I logged into the PSN to compare their 'signature toy' as well. For some reason it thinks I'm in the UK, and I can't pick Borderlands nor Disgaea as a favorite game.

I'm probably a hypocrite here, because last night I was annoyed that my Dragon Age: Origins Profile hasn't updated in ages.

When do I get to show Delcar as my Bioware forum pic?

(He is totally checking her out)
