Delcar: Multi-generational Meddler.

I found the funniest blog about the sims this past weekend, and [since Sims 3 is around the corner] the Sims 2 stuff has gotten cheap + Christmas gift cards (I'm a cheap bastard, whatayya want?) so I'm now officially inspired to make what will likely be a parody of the campaign.

Check out this awesome blog which I blame for really re-igniting my interest. Specifically the Laurince Legacy has made me laugh out loud dozens of times. :D

Note: Most of these character names/relationships are going to be nonsensical if you don't check out the 'character biographies'/cast of characters.

Resources

Installed: The Sims2 Double Deluxe, University, Open For Business, Pets.

I'm not hugely interested in Seasons (I'm a native Floridian, we don't have seasons the way y'all do) or Bon Voyage, and the only way I'm every getting stuff packs is if they're bundled. Too much good free stuff on the web. Freetime? Maybe. Apartment life? Don't make me laugh. I don't mind torturing sims, but even I have some standards. :)

Mod the Sims 2 - Freesite + teh awesome outweighs the slow download times. I can damn near one-stop 'shop' here.

To be Simmed

The Count and Countess Blackheart [Sims family name: Blackheart]

- Delcar (Options include the 'midnight' skin by Louis, JB's midnight, and the Raven skin by HystericalParoxysm. Zoen makes a great one too, but not a match for Delcar. Stretchskin cheat to make him short, and I may need to find a slimmer base body, since it compacts him.

- Neltara (Stretchskeleton set to .7 ish makes her short, cute and yet still have adult features)

Dame Rashida, Sir Reigar and the kids. [Sims family name: Greenskin :P]

Some variation of the skins unlocked by treeaq and whatever I recolor. Rashida should be oliveish but still green, while Reigar could feasably use anything that says 'hey I can't help that my dad was green' to just a hint of green on a normal skintone.

- Rashida

- Reigar Fair-hair

- Rykeena

- Rashgar

Baroness Shethba Gemseeker :D [Sims family name, whatever corruption of Gemseeker is actually on their charactersheet]

- Shethba

- (maybe) Troek, Shethba's brother and father of:

- Jaerik

The orphans [Sorry kids, I'll have to make the parents and er, look the other way for a sec?] [Sims family name: ???]

- Nosarajyen

- Tashakina – the cobra.

- Jor [his parents may get the lucky job of raising the lot of them]

Thorin and ... whatever his wife's name is kids: (the OTHER half-orc family in town) [Sims family name: ???]

- The 'rents will be rolled up and moved to the bin.

- Fang (the sweet half-orc weretigress - yes you read that right) and her brutish and appropriately named brother:

- Fist

G'Layne – Agent of Chaos :D [Sims family name: Mohrdas]

- It's a toss-up between using the excellent crow skin by HIM666 or the also awesome joker skin by ooga booga as a base; he'll likely steal the Crow's outfit if nothing else, and I may tinker with layering Joker style eye makeup with different mouth makeup.

Turgor's family [Sims family name: ???]

- Turgor the Bold

- Grosslynn Earthheart [not-so wicked stepmother]

- Gwyndenemar [Gwen]

Sir Bedemere on reflection, I've started him as a young man to play through and hopefully get the money and aspiration awards kick-started. His backstory is flexible enough, and it will give me some practice. He could end up being the most important sim.

Also in Sims terms he's the only one that should start as an elder, so I may as well play him up to it.

By way of cheating without cheating... kind of... I've made a young Sir Bedemere move into stock Veronville. Whether or not this is the Bedemere the kids know, or his ancestor will depend on how well he does.

Sadly, unless some modders get REALLY darn clever, the centaur has to go.
